under S 136 of the Companies Regulation, every banking Company shall publish a statement on the 1st ~~Day~~ Monday in February & 1st Monday in August. The statement upon the accounts as below 31st December 30th June preceding. There will be thus ample month to prepare the statement. viz. between the dates in British India and in England. Since in neither of these places is the 30th June recognised as a Bank holiday. From the lists of holidays published in Bombay & Madras it can also be seen that 30th June has not been declared for a holiday under the Negotiable Instruments Act. It is only where a day or a recognised feast-day among a large part of the mercantile community over a local area that it is published as a holiday under the Act. From precedent & principle, there does not appear to be any good ground for notifying the 30th June as a holiday. If approved, the Manager will be informed that Govt regret that his request can not be complied with.
